U.S. HAS NO REGULAR NATIONAL ANTHEM

Music of "Star-Spangled Banner" Said to Be Taken From English Drinking Song.

If this country went to war with Germany would we do our fighting to the tune of "Yankee Doodle," "My Country, "Tis of Thee," "The Star Spangled Banner," "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," or "Dixie?"

Severance of diplomatic relations were followed by inquiries about the national anthem of the United States. These questionings brought out apother item in our national unpre-paredness—we have no national an-prevail upon Congress at this session to adopt a national flower-the mountain laurel—but so far a national an-them hasn't gotten even that far toward recognition. ward recognition.

Yes, it is perfectly proper to rise when "The Star-Spangled Banner" is played. That is the nearest thing to a national anthem we have. It is of-ficially recognized by the army and navy as a patriotic air. That is why the United States Marine Band, and all other army and navy bands, con clude each program with it.

Indorsed "Star-Spangled Banner." Thereby hangs one tale. Formerly even our official anthem was a med-ley. Hefore the administration of Roosevelt the army and navy bands played "Columbia" in the morning and "The Star-Spangled Banner" in the evening. President Roosevelt ordered that the latter should be the ordered that the latter should be the official patriotic air of these two branches of the military service.

This was done because "My Country, "Tis of Thee" was set to the music of the national anthem of Great Britain, "God, Save the King." But so far as getting a home product, "The Star-Spangied Banner," It later developed, is no improvement.

The music to this song has a more mysterious and polygiot origin than mysterious and polygiot origin the that of "My Country." Some author that of "My Country." Some authorities assert it had its origin in an Irish folk song. The evidence is pretty clear, though, that it was composed by an Englishman for the words of "To Anacreon in Heaven," an old drinking song. Others have tried to trace the music to Germany, and Puc-cini, an Italian, used it in "Madam Butterfly."

The music of "The Star-Spangled The music of "The Star-Spangled Banner" has been the subject of extensive study. Probably the most au-thoritative work upon it is a mono-graph, of more than 100 pages, and numerous plates showing early copies, compiled by Oscar G. T. Sonneck, chief of the division of music, Library of Congress. This monograph, cloth bound, was printed in 1914 as a Government document.

In summing up the highly conflicting evidence about the origin of the air, Mr.

Sonneck states:
"Available evidence, and a more thorough study of it than in 1909, together with the deductive force of Mr. Blake's discovery of the copyright entry of Smith's Fifth Book, compel me to believe that the music of Raiph Toplinson's poem, 'To Anacreon in Heaven,' was indeed composed by John Stafford Smith. Words and music of this song. later on popularly known as 'The Ana-creontick Song,' probably originated about the year 1775, at any rate, before the Anacreontic Society moved from Ludgate Hill, London, to the Crown and Anchor Tavern in the Strand."
